

THE CAPITOL WHIRL

A Digest of Things Political Occurring At Harrisburg

(By International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Sept. 8.—Gov. Edward Martin has received a Samurai sword, a Philippine bolo and an Indian Gurka from a Pennsylvania man in the army. The sword, taken from a Japanese officer, had been a family weapon for hundreds of years, according to a written history found in the hollow pearly-handled hilt. Each time the sword was drawn in battle the event was recorded on the rice-paper. Razor-sharp, the sword was of medium length, the donor explained to the Governor, to permit the officer to fall upon it in a rough version of battled field harikiri in case suicide was indicated. On the side of the scabbard was a keen blade about six inches long which was used by an aide, it was explained, to slash the fallen officer's throat after falling on the sword.

The Pennsylvania Angler, published by the State Fish Commission, has reported that the eels caught in the Susquehanna River were spawned thousands of miles away in the South Atlantic Ocean. Scientists know they originate in their natural breeding grounds in the deeper parts of the ocean near the Sargasso Sea," the magazine stated. "After the spawning period, the females die and the offspring—known as elvers—start a herculean journey to the coast lines of the world, where they enter the fresh water streams."

When Congress abolishes daylight saving time and the nation's clocks are set back an hour, two late employees will be kept busy turning 355 large timepieces back 60 minutes. Deputy Secretary of Property and Supplies Frank E. Hoffman reports that some 1290 electric clocks in buildings in the state Capitol group will also have to be returned to "slow time."

Hoffman said the two employees spend four days each week checking the various manually operated clocks for accuracy and repair the timepieces on Wednesdays. Included in the group of hand-wound clocks are two large timepieces located in the House of Representatives and Senate.

On February 9, 1942, the clocks were advanced one hour for the first time despite the fact that daylight saving time had been observed in Harrisburg for many years. The original standard time act was passed by the General Assembly in 1887 and provided that time fixed by Congress should be the official one in Pennsylvania. Later amendments, which required that the state, cities and counties conduct business on standard time, made it unlawful for any clock in governmental offices to indicate standard time. The law never prevented late employees from enjoying the added hour of daylight at the end of their working day. Workers came to their offices an hour earlier during the daylight saving time period and worked what was called "summer hours."

MASSSED U. S. TROOPS ENTER TOKYO AS STARS AND STRIPES FLUTTER OVER NERVE CENTER OF DEFEATED JAPAN

Historic Flag-Raising Ceremony Marks Final Chapter of the Long Road Back from Bataan—Occupation Carried Out Smoothly—Old Glory Raised as A "Symbol of Hope for Oppressed" at a Signal from General Douglas MacArthur.

By Julian Hartt

I. N. S. Staff Correspondent

TOKYO, Sept. 8.—(INS)—Massed United States troops entered Tokyo today as the Stars and Stripes fluttered over the bomb-battered nerve center of a defeated Japan.

The historic flag-raising ceremony marked the final chapter in General Douglas MacArthur's long road back from Bataan and Corregidor to triumphant victory.

Meanwhile, other occupation forces of the Supreme Allied Commander moved to bring two other important Jap-held areas under American control.

Units of Vice Admiral Frank Jack Fletcher's North Pacific Fleet steamed through the Tsugaru Straits, between Honshu and Hokkaido, today preparatory to landing amphibious troops at the Ominato naval base.

And U. S. Seventh Fleet Forces, standing off southern Korea, were ready to put troops of the U. S. 24th Army Corps ashore this afternoon on the peninsula held by the Japs for 40 years.

The Tokyo flag-raising marked the close of one phase of the Allied occupation of Japan, signaling as it did the complete subjugation of the Nipponese empire.

The historic banner which flew over the White House in Washington on Dec. 7, 1941, and then was carried to the battlefronts of the world to mark America's path on the victory road was unfurled over the U. S. Embassy grounds in the Jap capital at 11:14 a. m. (7:14 p. m. Friday, PWT).

MacArthur gave the signal which

HERE AND THERE IN BUCKS COUNTY TOWNS

Activities of Interest To All In The Various Communities

GLEANED BY SCRIBES

Prominent officers of the Bucks-Montgomery Council of the V. F. W., and a number of Norristown veterans visited the Doylestown Post, No. 175, V. F. W., Tuesday.

George Karr, commander of the county council, urged members of the Doylestown post to take an active part in training the returning overseas veterans of this war to become active in various offices the post has to offer.

"In the group of returning veterans coming back to Doylestown and central Bucks county, you will have many of the new leaders this community will have in the near future, and don't fail to make use of this young material," Commander Karr advised.

Commander Karr complimented the Doylestown post on the rapid strides being made. He pointed out that the post's service officers are doing a job that is outstanding in the entire state.

Hybrid seed production and other marvels of modern horticulture were explained to members of the Kiwanis Club of Doylestown this week during an inspection of the Ford Hook trial gardens in Doylestown.

Following the afternoon trip, research experts were guests of Kiwanis at the club's weekly dinner meeting at the Fountain House, when colored pictures of interesting research discoveries in flowers and seed growing were shown.

At the trial gardens Kiwanians saw one of the most extensive hybrid tomato experiments in the United States. They also saw hybrid cucumbers and squash in full growth. College girls specially trained in research work explained the details to the Kiwanians.

The afternoon's trip and the evening program was planned by Dr. Samuel Edgecombe, vice-president and director of research for the seed firm, and a member of the county seat Kiwanis Club.

CHURCH CELEBRATION

PERKASIE TO EXPAND ITS ELECTRIC PLANT

Claim 20-Year-Old Turbine Incapable of Carrying The Load

PERKASIE, Sept. 8.—Expansion of Perkasia's municipally-owned electric plant was taken into consideration at the monthly meeting of borough council, this week. Council, it has been pointed out, is faced with the necessity for the expansion of the plant, and this came as a result of the disclosures contained in the report of the superintendent of the plant, George Snyder.

Mr. Snyder told council the turbine installed 20 years ago is no longer capable of carrying the load. Council decided to install another turbine and to retain the two turbines now in operation. Further expansion plans, it was pointed out, will have to await the recommendations of an engineer, and it was agreed to engage one before the meeting next month.

Financially, members of council pointed out, the electric light department is in a healthy condition. The $150,000 bond issue which was floated to finance the 1938 expansion program has been reduced to $75,000. Other assets of the department consist of $60,000 in war bonds, $3,000 in the sinking fund and approximately $5,000 on deposit in bank.

Mrs. Esther Yeakel, the tax collector, turned over to council $15,794.85 collected on the 1945 duplicate, on which $3,148.62 remains outstanding.

Presenting his report, Street Commissioner J. Frank Afferbach stated this year's street oiling project required 5,550 gallons of oil, or about two-thirds the amount required last year. The street improvement program was curtailed this year in order to provide for more funds for the re-building of Fifth street.

Sales of current at the electric light plant during August amounted to $5,422.16. Expenses totaled $7,922.45, and the net proceeds amounted to $489.71.

MARITAL TROUBLES OCCUPY THE TIME OF JUDGE BOYER

"Other Woman" Results In Heavy Support Order Being Issued

A HULMEVILLE CASE

John H. Custer Claims His Wife Stuck Her Chin Out and He Had to Hit It

DOYLESTOWN, Sept. 8.—Robert Rimmer, 28, Mechanicsville, makes a carry-home pay of $56 a week and his meals as chef in a hotel in Lansdale, and he thought that he was doing a generous thing when he voluntarily gave his wife for her own and their three children's support the sum of $21 a week.

Judge Calvin S. Boyer, however, thought differently after listening to the complaint of Mrs. Marie Rimmer, and ordered Robert to pay his wife $35 weekly, and pay the costs of the case.

In her testimony, Mrs. Rimmer stated that another woman was the cause of the difficulties between her husband and herself and that her husband left her in order to be in the company of the other woman.

The only charge made by Rimmer against his wife was that she was untidy about the home.

Claiming that his wife stuck her chin out and that he had to hit it with his fist, John H. Custer, Hulmeville, and Edna M. Custer, his wife, devoted most of their testimony before Judge Boyer to denying the statements of each other in Mrs. Custer's suit for a support order.

Custer, a powder plant worker, did not deny beating his wife with his fists on July 25, but charged her with extravagance in buying clothes for herself while she claimed that it was for their two children that she spent money which she earned herself.

Judge Boyer ordered that Custer pay his wife $8 a week toward her own support and $6 a week apiece for the two children, a total payment of $20 per week. Custer was released on his own recognizance for the sum of $500.

George M. Brown, Newtown, recently discharged from the military service after an outstanding tour of duty overseas, was directed to pay his wife $15 instead of $7 per week towards her support. The amount was decided upon by agreement between the husband and wife.

A $34-per-week beverage truck driver who spent most of his money on treating his friends and building up his business, was described in court here yesterday by Judge Hiram H. Keller as "another good fellow boy."

He is John H. Esser, Jr., of near Applebachville, 27-year-old father of three small children, whose pretty blonde wife, Helen, had him brought into the county's domestic relations court for support money.

HONORABLE DISCHARGE IS GIVEN J. A. RIGBY, JR.

SALESMEN IN POSTWAR ERA
The role that the salesmen will play in the reconversion period and in the peace-time era offers much room for speculation. Already the subject has projected a sizable controversy. Some days ago, Price Administrator Chester Bowles said it isn't going to take any high-priced sales arguments, to get new washers, ironers and other electrical appliances into the hands of the public when the potential consumers know they are in stock.

This statement brought prompt disagreement from Charles G. Pyle, managing director of the National Electrical Wholesalers' Association.

Mr. Bowles obviously was thinking of the backlog of consumer demand for products which have not been manufactured for several years. Mr. Pyle was thinking of the competition between manufacturers and of the vast number of salesmen in peacetime. Mr. Pyle said 7,000,000 salesmen were employed in United States industries before the war, and that this number was reduced to 4,000,000 before the close of the conflict.

According to present estimates, said Mr. Pyle, 10,000,000 salesmen will be required in the peace years ahead.

"Without the sort of build-up demand which astute salesmen can generate," Mr. Pyle continued, "there will be little chance of long-sustained full employment which all officials of the government and industry are anxious to see achieved."

"You, as one of America's well and favorably known advertising executives before you undertook your present post, are unquestionably familiar with the ever present factor of 'competition.' With the consumer being confronted with a variety of appliance lines, I am sure you will agree from experience that selling determines in most instances which lines will be selected."

Mr. Bowles must know that there are differences in products even when those products are scarce, and that each manufacturer wants his share or more of possible sales. And when goods are plentiful in an economy of free enterprise, the salesman certainly plays an important role, not only in boosting the wares of the manufacturer or dealer who employs him, but in creating demand for the product he is selling.

Hirohito will receive his daily stint of rice so long as he places the proper emphasis on two words—"Yes, Mac."

Montgomery Ward's fall catalog will be a month late. Evidently the Army still hasn't mastered the mail order business.

With most of its activities kaput, OPA was forced to work out more intensively on the retailers if it wanted to stay in business.

Prediction that cars of the future will have rubber springs fails to impress the average motorist, who will be content if they have rubber tires.

Miss Mary E. Watson Is Wed To 1st Lt. Courtney

The Courtney-Watson nuptial ceremony in St. James' Episcopal Church yesterday afternoon at the hour of four attracted a large company of guests. The bride, Miss Mary Elvora Watson, daughter of Mrs. John R. Watson, Bath street, and 1st Lt. Francis Engard Courtney, Jr., of Seymour Johnson Field, Goldsboro, N. C., were united in marriage at a double ring ceremony performed by the Rev. George E. Howell. The altar decorations consisted of palms and cut flowers.

The bride, gowned in white, approached the altar as the bridal march from Lohengrin was played by organist, Mr. John C. Burdiss, of Dolington. The recital of organ selections by Mr. Burdiss prior to and during the ceremony included "Ich Liebe Dich" (Grieg); "I Love You Truly"; "Because"; and "At Dawning". For the recessional the Mendelssohn march was used.

The former Miss Watson was attractive in white slipper satin. The bodice, form-fitting, had a sweetheart neck-line, and the long sleeves were pointed over the hands. The skirt was cut full, sweeping to a graceful train. Wide lace edged the hem-line of the skirt, with tiers of the lace arranged in a panel from the back of the waist-line to the end of the train. Her square-cut French lace veil was one worn by her great, great grandmother. This was attached to clusters of orange blossoms at the temples. The bride carried a white prayer book topped by gardenias.

The trio of attendants of the bride was inclusive of her sister, Miss Ruth Ann Watson, Bath street, who served as maid of honor; and Mrs. Jack McJunkin, Bristol, and Mrs. Alvin C. Searfoss, of Milford, the bridesmaids. The three were attired in floor-length gowns of light blue net, that of the maid of honor being in a paler shade than those of the bridesmaids. The net gowns, arranged over blue foundations, featured close-fitting bodices with over-all braid applique designs. They had tiny cap sleeves, and short peplums were also of net. With these were worn long blue net mitts extending to the shoulders; half hats of matching net; and pink slippers. Miss Watson carried an arm bouquet of pink roses; and Mrs. McJunkin and Mrs. Searfoss carried arm bouquets of mixed blossoms. The three also wore the dainty pearl necklaces and ear-rings presented to them by the bride.

The best man was Mr. Francis E. Courtney, Sr., Germantown, father of the groom; and the ushers were Mr. Roland Moore, Germantown; and 1st Lt. Alvin C. Searfoss, U. S. A. C., of Milford.

Dinner following the ceremony was served at the Stacy-Trent Hotel, Trenton, N. J., to members of Our Gracious Master who walked the pathway of men bless, we pray Thee, all those who this day have toiled and labored at shop and home. Give them large places to fill, great opportunities to meet; success that is clean and free from the stain of injustice to others. From Thy bounty grant them a store of health and happiness. May their lives be filled with love and hope; grant them a charitable disposition.

Keep them and us free from temptation. Give us all a sure knowledge of Thee, in all Thy divine attributes; and give us fellowship with our fellowmen in truer worship of Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

the bridal party and the Courtney and Watson families. Lt. Courtney and bride are spending a few days at Pocono Manor. The bride's traveling costume consisted of a gray wool skirt with Persian lamb trim at the waist-band, the skirt being patterned with an unpressed pleat at the front; a neon blue blouse of wool jersey, this having long sleeves; black felt hat, and she wore a white orchid corsage.

Mrs. Courtney will reside with her mother and will continue her teaching duties at Washington street school while the groom is in service. She is a graduate of Bristol high school, and of East Stroudsburg State Teachers College. The groom, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Engard Courtney, Sr., of Germantown, graduated from Germantown high school. He was attending East Stroudsburg State Teachers College when his studies were interrupted for service in the U. S. Army Air Corps.

Gifts of the groom to the best man and ushers were leather wallets.

For the ceremony Mrs. Watson, mother of the bride, selected a street length dress of black silk, with green and white floral design. With this she wore a black felt hat, white gloves and white orchid corsage. Mrs. Courtney, the groom's mother, was attired in a blue crepe costume and wore blue accessories.

VOLTZ NINE BOOKED TO PLAY "BADIES" HERE TOMORROW

Game To Be One of Series for Championship of Bristol League

WILL START AT 3 P. M.

Receipts Are For "Bill" Leigh, Who Broke His Leg On Memorial Day

Tomorrow afternoon at three o'clock on Leedom's field the Voltz-Texaco nine will clash with the Badenhausen team to decide the championship of Bristol baseball world.

The game will be the first of a series of three to decide the local honors.

The Voltz nine is of the Trenton Industrial League, while the "Badies" won the championship of the Bristol Suburban circuit.

It is likely that Paul Dean will pitch for Badenhausen, while Freeman Bowman will do the receiving.

The old veteran, Black, or Carey, will toss them up for the Voltz nine, and "Shine" Angeline will do the catching.

The receipts of the game are to go to "Bill" Leigh, who had the misfortune to break his leg in a game on Memorial Day while playing with the Texaco nine in a game with Fleetwings.

This afternoon Voltz plays American Steel on the Wetzel field in Trenton at 3.15 in a playoff series in the Trenton Industrial League.

Marital Troubles Occupy The Time of Judge Boyer

The court and District Attorney Edward G. Biester both admitted that Esser's case was a most unusual one because of the fact that the defendant was one of those who thought that he had done no wrong but that he was altogether right.

Before leaving Doylestown, however, Esser's $34-week salary for selling beer and soft drinks and making deliveries, was cut down to $14 for his own use for the court ordered that Esser pay $20 per week to Horace E. Gwinner, domestic relations officer for the use of Mrs. Esser for the upkeep of herself and three children, and he was held in his own recognizance in the sum of $500 to comply with the order.

"Either keep up with this order—unless sickness or some other legal cause prevents—or the Sheriff will come after you and you'll land in jail," Judge Keller warned Esser.

Mrs. Esser told the court that her husband started to work early in the morning, came home "any time at night," washed and dressed, and then went out again. She said that he was home on the average of about "one hour a day." She stated that her husband had given her "practically no money" during the past few months.

Esser told the court that he needed most of his salary in his business, that he had to go to hotels and tap rooms and be a "good fellow," to mingle with the boys.

"You can't be a 'long face' in my business; you have to be regular at all times," Esser commented to the court. Then he told Judge Keller that he thought that if an order was made on him, he should have at least $20 a week for his own use.

The Essers live together on a farm near Applebachville which they bought last year through the assistance of their respective parents.

quizzes finished the high neck-line. Sleeves, which were puffed at the top, were close-fitting on the lower arm, and ended in points over the hands. The lengthy net veil was edged in lace. This was held by a tatra of beads and brilliants. White slippers completed the costume, and she carried an arm bouquet of white roses.

The maid of honor, Miss Morris, wore blue, the bodice being of satin and the skirt of net. Neck-line was V-shape, and the short sleeves were puffed. Blue flowers in her hair held a matching veil of finger-tip length. She carried yellow roses. Miss Nadler selected a gown with strapless shoulder effect, this being of pink taffeta. A narrow pleated ruffle edged a round neckline, with pleated ruffle trim also appearing about the pockets at the hip-line and on the short puffed sleeves. She wore a pink floral head-piece and matching finger-tip veil. Her bouquet was composed of pink roses. Miss Sorenson's gown was patterned like that of Miss Nadler, but was in aqua taffeta. Her floral head-piece and veil were in matching tone, and she carried pink roses. The three young women wore gold-toned slippers.

Following the wedding ceremony a reception was held in the church social room. Mr. and Mrs. Seyfert then left for Greenfield, Mass., for a honeymoon journey. The travelling costume of the bride consisted of a three-piece suit of gold tone, trimmed in black. Black accessories and a corsage of white asters were worn. They will reside at 4 Green Lane.

For the ceremony Mrs. Wagner, mother of the bride, selected a two-piece dress of black and white jersey, black and white accessories, and wore a corsage of asters. Mrs. Bruno Seyfert, the groom's mother, was costumed in a blue silk crepe dress with embroidered flowers in red. Her accessories were in black and white, and she wore a white aster corsage.

The newlyweds are graduates of Bristol high school. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bruno Seyfert, Washington street. To his attendants he presented wallets; and the bride's gifts to the maid of honor and bridesmaids were necklaces. Mr. Seyfert gave his bride as a wedding gift a necklace of pearls; she presenting him with a wallet.

Massed U. S. Troops Enter Battered Tokyo signal for the flag-raising as he faced Lt. Gen. Robert L. Eichelberger, occupation commander for the Tokyo area, and said: "General Eichelberger, have our country's flag unfurled, and over Tokyo let it wave in its full glory as a symbol of hope for the oppressed and as a harbinger of victory for the right."

After the flag was raised, MacArthur and his party which included Adm. William F. Halsey, Navy representative at the ceremony, stood bareheaded while a First Cavalry Division chaplain spoke a benediction.

Then MacArthur turned to Halsey who was blinking back tears of emotion. The Supreme Commander smiled slightly and, deeply moved, said: "Well, Bill."

Each man reached for the other's hand spontaneously. They clasped hands firmly and no other words passed between them. The famed First Cavalry, selected by MacArthur to be the first unit to occupy Tokyo, paced the mass entry into the Jap capital several hours before the Supreme Commander's arrival.

MacArthur's party, traveling in two cars, made the short trip from Yokohama along an unguarded route. The five-star general, exhibiting the coolness which has always marked his conduct even under fire, forbade the posting of American troops along the route. He refused a Japanese request that they be allowed to post their own guards along the route.

The First Cavalry's Seventh Regiment, under command of Lt. Col. William A. Adams, of El Paso, Tex., had the honor of leading the now mechanized division into the Jap capital. It was the First Cavalry that also headed the liberation of Manila and the honor regiment—the Seventh—was part of Gen. George Custer's force which perished in the famous battle of Little Big Horn at the hands of the Sioux Indians.

MacArthur's honor guard was made up of the First Cavalry's "F" Troop, commanded by 1st Lt. John W. Feeley, of Saginaw, Mich.

MacArthur made a brief inspection of the Embassy grounds where he will soon make his personal headquarters, and then departed for Yokohama.

Units of the First Cavalry had already established a guard at Tokyo's famed Imperial Hotel, where general occupation headquarters will be situated, and other cavalrymen had taken strategic positions about the city.

You can shorten their waiting time

He's just back from Europe, with one thing on his mind: A talk by telephone to the folks at home.

His long distance call is something more than important to him; and his ability to make his call is vital to us. It's vital to us because it's our responsibility; and it's got to go through—despite the fact that long distance lines are as crowded as a troopship.

What to do?

There's only one thing, and that's to appeal to you to give this veteran every break and to help shorten his waiting time.

Will you help?

Will you make only the most necessary long distance calls, regardless of the time of day? Will you keep all calls brief? Will you bear in mind that the operator who asks you to limit your calls to five minutes does so only because the long distance line you want is crowded? And will you continue to save seven to ten for service men, as well as other hours right around the clock?
